

The 'likeness' (Saint Diadochus of Photice)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

Everybody is made in the image of God.

But the 'likeness' belongs only to those who, with great love, have subjected their freedom to God. Because when we cease to belong to ourselves, then we're like Him, Who reconciled us with Himself through love.

Nobody can achieve this unless they convince their soul not to be lured by the easy glory of this world.
